

Links Related to Biblical Studies

Compiled by Carolyn Pressler (cpressler@unitedseminary-mn.org)

<http://www.textweek.com>

This is my current favorite. It allows you to consult the lectionary to find the reading for your week, or to look for helps by text. It also has a number of indexes, including a wonderful one for art. I use it weekly, if not daily!

Resource Page for Biblical Studies

<http://www.torreys.org/bible/>

Of all the sites I have looked at, this has the best set of resources for Scripture as text. It is specifically geared toward the early Christian Scriptures. Nonetheless, students of Hebrew Bible will also find it useful

New Testament Gateway (Or: All-in-One Biblical Resources Search)

<http://www.ntgateway.com/multibib.htm>

Old Testament Gateway

<http://www.otgateway.com/>

This looks to be a great set of resources for Older Testament studies. I have not used it yet, but am impressed by its organization.

Blue Letter Bible

<http://www.blueletterbible.com>

Allows user to conduct word search using Strong's concordance numbers. (find verse, then click on button marked "C")

National Geographi, Maps

<http://www.nationalgeographic.com/maps/index.html> National Geographic has all kinds of maps. Oddly enough, the middle eastern maps are located under "Europe" rather than "Asia" or "Africa."

Images, Oriental Institute of Chicago

http://www-oi.uchicago.edu/OI/OI\_TOC.html

a marvelous mega-site with lots of photographs of ancient artifacts.

Study Tools, Luther Bible Tutor

<http://www.lutherproductions.com/bibletutor/>

A Basic Tutorial in Hebrew Scriptures

Search, Wabash Center

<http://www.wabashcenter.wabash.edu/Internet/front.htm> The following site is from the Wabash Center, a Lilly Foundation Project designed to support teachers of religion and Bible. It is well done, and designed for the serious student or teacher of religion.

Search, Diatoma, Women in Antiquity

<http://www.stoa.org/diotima/>

An excellent site on Bible, Ancient Near East and Women

Land, Israeli Government web site

<http://www.israel-mfa.gov.il/mfa/go.asp?MFAH00j80>

From this site, you can also click on "Israeli Archeological Treasures," a wonderful source of images of archaeological findings. It is worth playing with other Israeli government pages as well. You click on History of Israel and then on "early history/archaeology"

Land, Virtual Tour of Jerusalem

<http://www.md.huji.ac.il/vjt/>

From Hebrew University. Includes many images of Jerusalem, including the Chagall Windows

Search, Abzu

<http://www.oi.uchicago.edu/OI/DEPT/RA/ABZU/ABZU.HTML>

This is the "Granddaddy" of compilations of links to resources concerning the ancient Near East.

Study Tools, Identifying the Argument of an Essay

<http://commhum.mccneb.edu/argument/summary.htm>

Ecole Images

<http://www2.evansville.edu/ecoleweb/images.html>

This a wonderful catalogue of links to artwork related to the Bible and to early church history

Artcyclopedia

<http://www.artcyclopedia.com/>

A marvelous search engine for works of art; allows one to search by Artist, Title, or a keyword from the title.

United Theological Seminary of the Twin Cities Home Page

<http://www.unitedseminary-mn.org/>

The homepage of United Theological Seminary. Provides information about courses, continuing education events, lecture series, "Day at United" events and faculty emails. You can also search the library catalogue from here. By the end of the semester, we hope to have a searchable biblical images database on the home page.
